

Faster and Faster

Things are moving so very fast these days that I suspect most of us can barely recall last year. Maybe time is speeding up! It certainly seems that way. If time is speeding up, luckily it is in our favor. Why? Because, individually and collectively, we are beginning to see the results of our reality creating much more quickly.

Yep, you got it. We are becoming more conscious and identifying the results of our thoughts and beliefs in greater detail and doing a much better job of it! Instead of time speeding up, maybe we are making better use of time; maybe instead, we are waking up! Apparently consciousness is on the rise as we begin to see the results of our thoughts, intentions and focus for which the expression "out of contrast comes clarity" has become ever more useful!

With realities as feedback coming back to us as fast as they do now, we can more readily see what we broadcast into the Universe as our beliefs, habitual patterns and our outgoing 24-hour-a-day prayer. And, because of this speedy feedback, we have it within us to refine our beliefs and values and produce new results even faster now.

As things move faster, we have more leverage to create new realities and otherwise steer ourselves away from the seemingly assured destruction we have set ourselves up for. This is the principle of "out of contrast comes clarity" and our saving grace as a species. As we make mistakes and reap results, we eventually begin to put 2 and 2 together. As we become more intentional in our output, we see the corollary between our thoughts and actions and begin that exorable climb to our possibilities and our potential. Eventually, we become intentional as a species, and eventually we will call this a science. This is how it works! And, you thought trial and error was dead! This is how we move forward as a species and everybody gets to contribute.. :)

Take, for example, George W. Bush, the 43rd president of the United States. Please! - (That's an old Rodney Dangerfield joke!). He has seemingly made some very poor choices and contributed to some very soul wrenching scenarios for humanity. To compound things, he has abused a basic concept of power by manipulating people's fears and insecurities for his own interests. Of course, we let it happen. This is called unconscious consentience, a phrase I coined in Visionaries Thrive In All Times. (VTAT, Chapter 10, Momentum, pg 197)

Imagine, if you will, 51 percent of the voting population voting for Bush (I said imagine..) and realize that 51 percent (afraid of what might happen) and believing more in outside authority than their own innate messaging system (read: gut feelings and knowing better) let Bush choose for them. Now imagine that at least 30 percent of that 51 percent learned a big lesson and are reviewing what their gut was telling them way back then.

Through a great deal of planetary pain, Bush has cured a lot of people of believing in the supposed superiority of outside authority figures when the messaging from their innate guidance system was so readily available. What is so powerful about this is that so many are being forced to wake up to the fact that within their own messaging system they knew better. Many certainly know better now!

A substantial percentage of those who voted for retaliation, killing and revenge (against whom?) will never go back to the old way of doing things. 30 percent of the 51 percent is pretty big numbers. And, an even larger segment who has not voted recently will become far more active. To see a huge portion of the slowly-waking public revise their beliefs in outside authority in such a short period of time is pretty startling – and likely right on time! This is what time speeding up is all about!

Somewhere in my book, Visionaries Thrive In All Times, I make a remark about "not discounting the guys who bring up the rear.. i.e., they provide an important function also.." - as a reminder for continued clarity about the different ways of doing things.
(VTAT, Chapter 3, Individuality pg 56)

I can't imagine anything more earth-shaking than bringing people back to the importance of listening to their innate guidance system after seeing the results of horrible decision making. And, as we have come to see the worst case scenarios unfold, I expect we will see humans thinking, feeling and listening a bit more to their internal mechanisms as they make new choices with an eye toward the future.

No doubt about it. There were a myriad of alternative solutions available. Me personally? I think rules adopted for playgrounds would have worked nicely.
