

The Dimensions of the Law of Attraction

How many of us use the Law of Attraction to our best advantage? Generally, the Law of Attraction is understood as a mechanism or principal by which one receives in their life based on the quality of one's output or focus. Most of us, at best, use the Law of Attraction to "get what we get, want what we want, and end up with what we end up with" in our lives. In other words, based on what we need, less our unconscious and subconscious self-talk, trauma-induced beliefs and values, and other variations of dysfunction, we receive based on the consistency of our outgoing prayer/focus and attention to detail.

And while it is not unusual to see Law of Attraction promoted as the method of acquiring new automobiles, parking spots in the front rows of shopping malls, or a new wife/husband or girlfriend/boyfriend, or load's of money, typically one is not using the Law of Attraction either artfully or to full advantage. And, while a cursory understanding of the Law of Attraction is very powerful, there is a great deal more available in what appears to be a simple, yet powerful concept and principle..

Typically, the Law of Attraction is understood as, "What we focus on expands." One thought, purely held, attracts to it another thought like it but more powerful. Those two thoughts, powerfully held, attract a third thought for which the accumulation becomes increasingly powerful and soon reality creation is off and running. There is an additional component to this growing resonance and that is the feelings that are associated with the arising thoughts and resultant Momentum. Feelings are an interchange with the Cosmos, or what I like to call Innate Intelligence, for which we get insight into the quality of the choices and quality of reality creating which then ensues.

It is in the resonance and feelings and quality of connection with Source that we get insight into the quality of the reality creating we are each producing. This is kind of like a cosmic virtual coach in step with our reality creating. It is in the feelings associated with our thoughts and accumulating Momentum that we becomes clear about the quality of our reality creating far beyond the linear mind's capacity for discernment. We become aware of the quality of our output for which reality is the keen feedback mechanism, and for which we receive insight from the source of Creation. Not a bad system!

But the Law of Attraction is far more. The Law of Attraction, when properly understood, is far more importantly, a feedback mechanism for an understanding of the quality of our connection with Source, i.e., Innate Intelligence, crucial to advancing personal and collective consciousness. As we become more conscious, physicality and linear events become less important and Flow and consciousness become far more important. "Reality Creating" becomes about Flow and connection to Source which is far truer than the new convertible or great tickets to a sporting event.

Law of Attraction used artfully becomes the vehicle to allow one access to deep levels of consciousness for which we soon leave traditional reality creating aside all together. We soon move beyond linear reality creating all together! Law of Attraction, as the single tool between the mind and reality, brings us to nonresistance and unconditional love, something any self-respecting, conscious reality creator eventually stumbles upon. And, it is in this refined perspective of the Law of Attraction that nonresistance and unconditional love become available and the world truly opens up. This is what life is actually all about for which Law of Attraction is the portal – leading us to far more than what we can "get, take, or accumulate" on our own.

It is in nonresistance that a type of guidance becomes available such that linear thinking and traditional reality creating becomes completely obsolete and the more sophisticated uses of Law of Attraction begin to blossom. It is in the harnessing of the Law of Attraction that we begin an immense journey far beyond what the linear mind could ever produce on its own. We are now entering a whole new aspect of life for which a cursory interpretation of Law of Attraction was simply little more than an entry point.

It is in a depthful understanding of the Law of Attraction that the real world becomes available to us; the heaven on earth that we somehow always knew was there becomes available to us.. This understanding is like following the breadcrumbs for which the Law of Attraction is only a portal and opening. Once we begin to interact with a tool that has no dimensional limits, we begin to access life and space and time that we simply can't access on our own with limited focus and resources..

Out of the Momentum of writing my book, Visionaries Thrive In All Times, and the many things that have become available to me since, I have stumbled onto nonresistance, unconditional love and conscious awareness. I have also stumbled upon the awareness that, in our naïveté, individually and collectively, we create our realities by our resistance. Resistance is huge focus and the source of all of the dysfunctionality we see. Once we understand that in flow and nonresistance everything is possible/available to us, linear reality creating become little more than attempts to "take" what we wish at odds with a much bigger picture of abundance that is available to us once we get the hang of it.. In other words, receiving is much larger than getting or taking. And, receiving becomes available when we stop trying to create realities with the linear mind.

Law of Attraction used artfully and as a stepping stone to receiving gives one access to dimensions undreamt because Law of Attraction is a true Law that reaches far beyond the linear mind's comprehension. Multi-dimensioned Law of Attraction is the key and guide to interacting with the world of Source which should be of keen interest to us. As we follow the breadcrumbs and become introduced to intention (versus focus), i.e., the exponential multiplier that begins this process, things begin to get very interesting..
